Theory of Change

The Need

80%

How much more of their income families living in poverty spend on essential needs: food, shelter, childcare, and healthcare.

Children who lack appropriate attire may miss school and also the only nutritious meal they're likely to receive all day.

Families are often unaware of the various resources available to them through their community's organizations.

The Response

Coats & Shoes

Warmth

Brand-new, high-quality coats and shoes for children in need, offering a child both physical and emotional warmth.

Confidence

A new coat and shoes can help students attend school, socialize with their peers, and play outside with pride.

Hope

The gift of a brand-new coat and/or shoes offers hope to both children and their caregivers, reminding them there are people in their community who care about their well-being.

Flow of Resources

Who We Serve

Our beneficiary organizations are nonprofits and 501(c)(3) organizations that support children and families in need, including Head Starts and Title 1 schools where 40% or more of their students' families are at or below 150% of the federally prescribed poverty level, and human service organizations such as homeless shelters, community libraries, or foster care agencies.

Children Who Benefit

Children with a new Operation Warm coat or pair of shoes will be able to maintain daily school attendance, helping to ensure they have access to critical classroom instruction time, heated classrooms, outdoor play with peers, and nutritious food.

The Result

Strong Communities

Every community is strengthened when children and families are empowered with the resources they need to thrive.

CAUSE

The Heinz Endowments partnered with Operation Warm to help gift brand-new winter coats to the children of Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania.

ACTIVATION

The Heinz Endowments partnered with Operation Warm to sponsor 2,100 coats, which were gifted with the help of the Pittsburgh Fire Fighters, who worked alongside Pittsburgh public elementary schools to identify children in need. “In my 25 years in firefighting, I have rescued people from burning buildings, helped save pets, and protected homes and property. I can say that none of these has been as rewarding as the lives we help change through our partnership with Operation Warm,” says John Gardella of the Pittsburgh Fire Fighters.

The Richardson Foundation partnered with Operation Warm to fund a program that would help the ISD Schools provide their students with essential clothing.

ACTIVATION

Operation Warm worked alongside volunteers and school staff to provide 200 brand-new pairs of shoes to second grade students at Kirkpatrick Elementary School in Fort Worth, Texas and helped distribute the remaining shoes to several other ISD schools.

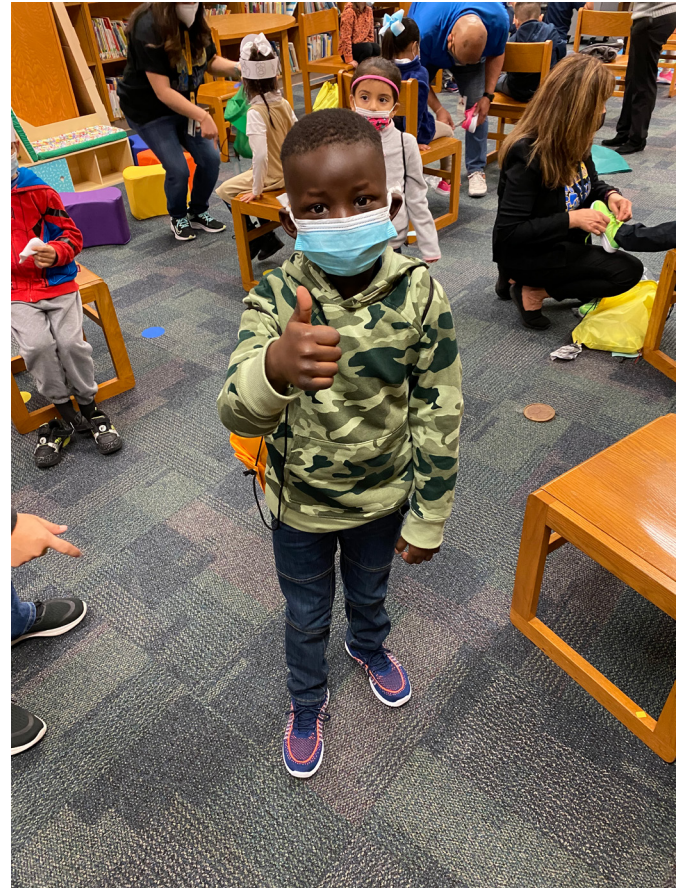

RESULTS

1,250
SHOES GIFTED

Working with the Richardson Foundation and ISD network of schools, we were able to show the students that their community cares for them while inspiring confidence.

This is best represented through the school principal Nancy Atkinson's experience;

"We saw [the kids'] faces light up when they received their shoes and they wore them proudly throughout the school year. Confidence helps students' social and emotional well-being, and we definitely saw that with Operation Warm."

Operation Warm impacted our students' confidence this year by providing brand-new shoes!
